

Clean Copy of ABSTRACT

Methods and apparatuses are provided for dynamic registration of privileged mode hooks in a device that can operate in a privileged mode and a non-privileged mode. A data structure is provided which maps between identifiers and functions. An available slot in the data structure is used to store a pointer associated with a function. The identifier can then be made accessible to non-privileged applications.